

LDaialogue DiCaprio - EPK:

BIOGRAPHY

The Memphis, Tennessee-raised lyricist/underground mixtape producer named L' Daialogue DiCaprio has been moving on the local scene in Memphis for the last few years. After graduating Trezevant High School, recording under the group 2Deep with cousin High Ruler King Cane and moving to New Orleans for college, L' Daialogue continued grinding on the local underground circuit in both cities with his OvaGround UndaGround mixtape series selling over 10,000 plus copies of those "ovaground" flavored mixtapes born out the blues-influenced struggles and soul-inspired realness of the Memphis, Tennessee.

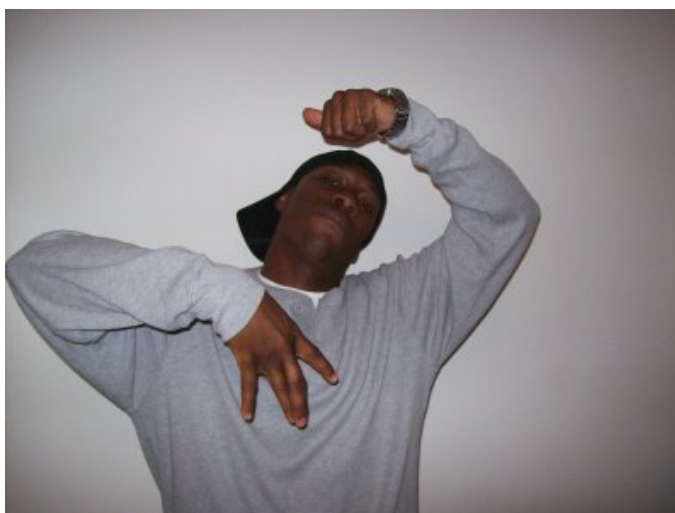

After gaining notoriety in many local freestyle battles and radio spins with singles such as the regional favorite "Average Line", "Going", "The City of Playaz and Macs" and creating the theme song for local New Orleans Q-93.3 FM DJ, Dyron D, L' Daialogue's lyrical skill and work ethic is one to marvel at also. On the production end, L' Daialogue along with in-house DJ MiZUnderstatistic have created a majority of the production on the OvaGround UndaGround series.

Now, L' Daialogue continues with a full plate of underground credits is ready to move the next level of the Hip-Hop game. He is gaining ground with his new series entitled "Bluff City Daialogue" with Memphis-based DJ Kenny Kaign and is in post-production with his new mix album "Bluff City Daialogue 2".
