Adam Urban, who goes by the alias Kingofuploadedtv, is the grandson of the renowned Vaudevillian Jack Ulmer, an early partner of Bob Hope. He was born and raised in the Midwest- United States where, he attended the finest schools and was educated by the Brothers of the Holy Cross. Kingofuploadedtv started out in the nightclub business in Cleveland, Ohio, with his first position as that of co-owner, promoter, and a DJ. As a co-owner for several years, Mr. Urban wore many hats in the Cleveland entertainment scene with contributions such as the Groovee Nightclub, which later became Eve after his departure. He was the founder of a multitude of local businesses that reflect his University Studies in entrepreneurship, including inventing new technology in the tanning industry, working in the fields of internet gambling, and entertainment transportation. In the next phase of his career, Kingofuploadedtv worked for Taleon Artists in St. Petersburg, Russia in association with the Presidents Affairs Agency as head of the Anglo-American Music Department. Adam, handled all forms of negotiations, represented and worked in cooperation with talent buyers, record labels, and talent agencies from the United States, UK, and Russia to secure acts for concerts and events including the 300th anniversary of St. Petersburg. These endeavors led to his latest project, Uploaded.TV that Kingofuploadedtv likes to call "TV's first social network" where viewers are encouraged to participate by buying airtime for their self made videos in its TV quality, edited, and hosted TV formats. Mr. Urban understood and experienced the power that television can bring, and the successes that can be achieved online through video sharing sites. He put the two together into a patent pending application, now known as www.uploaded.tv. Uploaded.TV begins where other video social networks end, allowing those that have a following and success online, to take their content to the TV screen and share in the revenue. Kingofuploadedtv's focus has been on additional revenue models and real business models for TV channels, online, as well as for content creators.
